We Like to Party: WestEnd25

6 05 2010

Last night may have been just the perfect Spring night to have a new apartment building launch party, and the folks behind the new WestEnd25 pulled out all the stops to make the party match the weather. The location was the Penthouse and rooftop pool of the 283 unit building which overlooks Georgetown.

We really liked the look and feel of the building which has a set back entrance from 25th street and floor to ceiling windows that look out over the park across the street and from the higher units, Georgetown, the Potomac, and the Rosslyn skyline. Along with some great views there was food (and open bar) from local restaurants, including Ris, Bourbon Steak, and our favorite Blue Duck Tavern.

The building started leasing last year and is only 53% occupied (a lot of which is corporate housing) but given the location, views, amenities, and the prices that go with them, we imagine they expect to fill up slowly. At the end of the day, this has to be one of the nicest new buildings we have seen in a long time. More photos after the jump including the view and the pool...
